PRIVILEGED & CONFIDENTIAL — ATTORNEY WORK PRODUCT — PREPARED AT THE DIRECTION OF COUNSEL. This memorandum is provided to the client for the purpose of obtaining legal advice. Certain passages have been [REDACTED] prior to inclusion in the data room. Do not distribute.

Memorandum. To: Priya Raman, General Counsel. From: Sofia Adeyemi, Partner, Juniper & Rowe LLP (Juniper & Rowe LLP). Re: Preliminary privacy-risk and exposure assessment — account-integrity matter (workstream AURORA). Date: 8 December 2025. Privileged and confidential.

1. Scope and caveats

You have asked for our preliminary view of the potential legal and financial exposure associated with the account-integrity matter and the anomalous activity observed against a historical legacy profile dataset. This memorandum is necessarily preliminary: the forensic review is ongoing, the scope of any data acquisition is not settled, and the figures below are indicative ranges, not estimates of probable loss. They are provided to assist the client in assessing reserves and strategy and are subject to revision as facts develop.

2. Affected-population assumptions

The exposure analysis is highly sensitive to the number of affected individuals. On the current understanding, the dataset in question comprises approximately 912.8m historical profile records in total, of which approximately 286m relate to accounts active within the last twenty-four months. The regulatory and notification analysis below scales principally with the 286m active-account figure, while certain litigation theories could reference the larger 912.8m population. Our quantification methodology and the sensitivity of each band to that determination are set out at ■■■■■■■■ [Annex B, redacted].

3. Indicative exposure components

Subject to the caveats above, we set out indicative exposure bands by component. The aggregate is a sum of ranges and should not be read as a point estimate; actual exposure depends materially on regulator posture, the final forensic scope and the Company's mitigation.

Exposure component	Low ($m)	High ($m)
Regulatory fines & penalties (EU/UK/US state)	$60.0m	$160.0m
User notification, call-centre & credit monitoring	$70.0m	$120.0m
Security remediation (key rotation, backup redesign, auth migration)	$30.0m	$45.0m
Advertiser/customer contract credits & renegotiation	$25.0m	$60.0m
Civil litigation / class settlement reserve	$55.0m	$80.0m
Indicative aggregate (rounded)	$240.0m	$465.0m

Taken together, the indicative aggregate exposure is in the order of approximately $240m to $465m, depending principally on the affected-population determination (286m active / 912.8m total), on whether one or more regulators treat the matter as a notifiable breach, and on the posture adopted by the EU, UK and US state authorities.

4. Regulatory posture

- EU/UK: exposure is driven by whether the matter is notifiable and by the turnover-based penalty framework; engagement with the Irish DPC and the UK ICO is at an informal stage; our assessment of likely regulator posture is ■■■■■■■■ [redacted].
- US states: several state regimes carry per-record statutory exposure and AG enforcement risk; informal contact has been made by the California and New York offices.
- The Company's notification timing and characterisation decisions will materially affect both regulatory and insurance outcomes; see our separate note to coverage counsel at ■■■■ [redacted].

5. Interaction with insurance and reserves

We note (without advising on coverage, which is a matter for the broker and coverage counsel) that the timing and characterisation of any notice under the cyber tower may affect recovery, and that the indicative aggregate above materially exceeds the trust-and-safety contingency currently recognised in the draft financial statements; our view on the quantified delta is ■■■■■■■■ [redacted].

6. Recommendation

We recommend that the Company (a) complete the forensic review on an expedited basis; (b) finalise its notifiability analysis for each jurisdiction; (c) preserve and protect privilege; and (d) keep its reserve and disclosure positions under active review against the ranges above; our specific recommendations on characterisation and timing are ■■■■■■■■ [redacted].

This memorandum is a privileged, preliminary assessment and is hedged accordingly. Ranges are indicative and subject to revision. Attorney work product — prepared at the direction of counsel.
